
Call for Papers

AAPA-CSIE joint workshop on an integrated approach for the SDGs in Asia

The Asian Association for Public Administration (AAPA) and the Chinese Society for Industrial Ecology (CSIE) are calling for papers to be presented at their joint research workshop on an integrated approach for the SDGs in Asia. The workshop will be hosted by Tsinghua's Institute for Sustainable Development Goals on July 23th. It will take a hybrid mode accommodating both online attendees and those coming to Tsinghua.

Theme and topics

The workshop aims to encourage intellectual dialogues about regional, national and cross-country experiences for social economic development and transition in alignment with the SDGs among Asian countries. Both empirical analysis and theoretical contribution are welcome. Interdisciplinary communications and comparative policy studies are especially encouraged. Each contribution to the workshop should consider multiple, but not necessarily all the SDGs. Topics of the workshop include, but not limit to:

- Evaluation of the progress and transformation pathways for achieving

the SDGs

- Impact of emerging technologies, new business models, and upgraded infrastructure on the SDGs
- Synergies and trade-offs between the SDGs and other policy agendas, such as decarbonization, circular economy, high-quality development
- Prioritization and policy evaluation for a network of targets of the SDGs for swift transition
- Sustainable governance and inter-jurisdictional/regional collaboration
- Other challenges for achieving the SDGs in post-pandemic Asia

Important dates (GMT+8)

- Deadline for submission: June 15, 2022.
- Notification of acceptance: June 30, 2022.
- Conference data: July 23, 2022.

Journal submission outlets

The workshop is supported by the Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis, Journal of Industrial Ecology, Structural Change and Economic Dynamics, and Urban Governance. Selected papers from the workshop can be recommended for submission to the journals, subject their own independent review process.
